- ③ 미국식 발음 → 미국식 발음
- M: Hello. I'm interested in buying a new vehicle for my family. Could you show me some of your models?
- W: Right this way, sir. What kind of vehicle are you looking for?
- M: Well, I have a large family, so we need at least seven seats. Apart from that, safety and comfort are my major concerns.
- W: It sounds like you need a van. Our Eleganti model seats 10 people comfortably. It has anti-lock brakes, a sunroof, and a built-in stereo and DVD player.

Questions 35-37 refer to the following conversation.

- 3 호주식 발음 → 영국식 발음
- M: Will you be attending the chairperson's retirement party this Saturday? I hear that the company is spending a lot on the event.
- W: I want to go, but I have an important deadline I'm trying to meet. It's already Thursday, and at the rate I'm going, I'll need a miracle to be done by Monday morning.
- M: I just finished my work for today. Let me see what I can do to give you a hand.
- W: I would appreciate that. If you help me, maybe I'll be able to make it after all.

 - W1: I'm attending the workshop tomorrow. Do you both want to go with me?
 - M: Sorry . . . I can't. I have to attend an important meeting with clients. How about you, Rose?
 - W2: I'll go. It's training for how to use the customer management database, right?
 - W1: Yes. But I wonder why we're getting more information about a system that we're already using.
 - W2: The workshop isn't about the current system. The IT team has created a new version of the software.
 - M: Oh, that might be important for me, then. Can you bring back some materials so that I can read them later?
 - W2: Sure. I'll do that.

Questions 41-43 refer to the following conversation.

- ③ 영국식 발음 → 미국식 발음
- W: Hello. This is Konstantinos Restaurant, makers of the best pizza in town. What can I do for you?
- M: Hi. I called around 6:30 to order a vegetarian special. I just got my pizza and there seems to be meat on it. I'm not going to be able to eat it.
- W: I sincerely apologize for that, sir. Could you give me your name and address? I'll ask our driver to bring you a new one and a $10 coupon for your troubles.
- M: Thanks, but that won't be necessary. I've already had some Chinese food delivered. But I would appreciate it if you could reverse the charges to my credit card.
- Questions 44-46 refer to the following conversation.
 - ③ 영국식 발음 → 미국식 발음
 - W: Hello. This is Paula Short. I'm relocating to Sydney next month, so I need to cancel my membership at Emma's Gym.
 - M: Sure, you should go to the nearest Emma's Gym and speak with one of our customer service representatives. There, you'll need to fill out a form and pay a cancellation fee.
 - W: Is that so? But I have several meetings this week . . . Could I possibly do it online?
 - M: Sorry, but the company doesn't allow membership cancellations over the phone or on our Web site.
 - W: OK, then could I send my secretary to fill out the documents and pay the charge through my credit card?
 - M: No problem. Just send an identification card and authorization letter with your secretary.

W: Hey Joe, you're good with computers, right?

M: Yeah . . . I'm all right. Is there something wrong with yours?

W: Seems so. I just tried logging in to our Intranet system but couldn't.

M: All employee passwords have temporarily been changed due to a software update. Didn't you read the memo about this? It was sent out last Tuesday to everyone in the company.

W: I was on a business trip abroad last week, so I never saw it. Um, so how can I access the Intranet? Do I need to speak with my manager?

M: No. The IT department e-mailed temporary passwords to everyone. You should check now and see if you received one.

W: OK. I'll do that right away.

Questions 56-58 refer to the following conversation.

호주식 발음 → 미국식 발음

M: Sue, can you look at the calendar for the weekend of July 15? One of my clients wants to reserve 20 rooms for a group of visiting dentists.

W: Let me see. We have about 30 rooms still available. But don't forget, the Honor Society usually has its conference here on that date and generally has about 40 attendees.

M: You're right. I'll try calling the Honor Society and find out if they will be coming for sure. If they are, I can call the hotel next door and see if they have any vacancies.

Questions 59-61 refer to the following conversation.

3 미국식 발음 → 호주식 발음

W: I was just told that the firm is moving its headquarters from New York to New Jersey. Did you know about that?

M: The board has been discussing it for a while but kept it a secret until yesterday. We've already sent a team to visit some office buildings in the area. They've selected two possibilities for us to choose between at the next meeting. The move is scheduled for next month.

W: So it's really happening? I wonder why the company wants to move. I think the current office building is in a convenient location.

M: I agree with you, but management wants to take advantage of the newer facilities available in New Jersey. Not to mention, the rent is much cheaper there than here in New York.

Questions 62-64 refer to the following conversation with three speakers.

M1: Hi. I came here today because I need to plan a trip to London. I'd like to go on December 19 and fly on Brighton Airways. I heard the company has amazing service.

M2: Certainly. Uh . . . it looks like that carrier has a flight leaving at 6 A.M. Is that all right?

M1: That's fine. How much will the ticket be?

M2: Including taxes, $712. But I believe our agency has an ongoing deal with the airline that could save you some money. Karen, is that Brighton Airways promotion still going on?

W: Uh . . . no, actually. It just ended last week.

M1: Oh, that's too bad.

W: However, you can still save 5 percent on your flight by signing up to become a Brighton Airways member. I suggest you do that.

M1: Great, I think I will.

M2: While my colleague assists you with that, I'll find some accommodation options for you to choose from.

Questions 65-67 refer to the following conversation and list.

3 호주식 발음 → 영국식 발음

M: I just spoke with our president. He wants us to figure out how to raise company profit margins.

W: He told me the same thing this morning when I talked to him. But I'm not sure about how to go about doing that.

M: Well, reducing departmental budgets would save us money.

W: Hmm . . . Can some of our divisions handle funding cuts?

M: I don't see why not. Aside from the marketing department, I think each one can be limited to $150,000 in quarterly expenses.

W: Well, we can give it a try and see if it affects overall operations.

- W: Hey, I heard you got together with the advertising director yesterday to discuss marketing for our new game console. How did it go?
- M: Well, we're considering featuring a celebrity in a TV commercial. We've already surveyed consumers to find out who people would respond well to.
- W: Interesting. But I'm worried it'll be too costly to hire someone famous. Don't you think so?
- M: It depends. John Marshall—a favorite among consumers—charges too much. We're now considering the stars who were preferred more than 20 percent.
- W: Hmm... the person who ranked the third seems like a good fit. I'd say we contact him.
- M: OK. I'll get in touch with his agent later today to discuss his rates.

Hello, everyone. Your company recently hired my accounting firm to address your budget concerns. So far, my team and I have managed to identify a few departments that have consistently performed below expectations. In the upcoming few weeks, we'll be studying ways to improve productivity. We have placed a suggestion box in the lobby, and welcome all of you to provide opinions on an anonymous basis. The firm we previously worked with increased production without affecting staff salaries or benefits, and we hope to do the same for your company. In about three weeks, we will be meeting again to discuss the results of our research, and to make our final suggestions.

Good morning, Mr. Cole. This is Theresa from Universal Phones. You called yesterday about the smartphones you ordered for your Kerrington Mall store. I'm sorry, but the shipment has been delayed due to a temporary shortage of materials in our factories. To explain . . . uh . . . the manufacturing department has been having trouble keeping up with the incoming orders. That's because the production schedule I recently created, which is based on sales projections, has turned out to be too conservative. Consequently, all the retailers in your area are waiting to restock the phone model you ordered, which happens to be our most popular white model. Given these complications, your shipment will not arrive until March 24.
